Opened For Approvals:	2023-06-09
Closed For Approvals:	2023-07-04

Classification/Nature/Reason:

This is a Class II Charge Change Order, since it only affects ALMY-CH-04, which falls under the authority of Officer approval. This CCO would revise the Alchemy clan tag, and was initiated by the request of several members when it was discovered that the in-game clan function would not allow the planned [ALMY]. This change is not administrative because [ALMY] was the intended clan tag.

Details:

In CH-04, “EXCLUSIVITY”, section ii), revise FROM:

The “clan tag” [ALMY] shall be included in front of their names when playing in competition matches. Otherwise, the clan tag is not required.

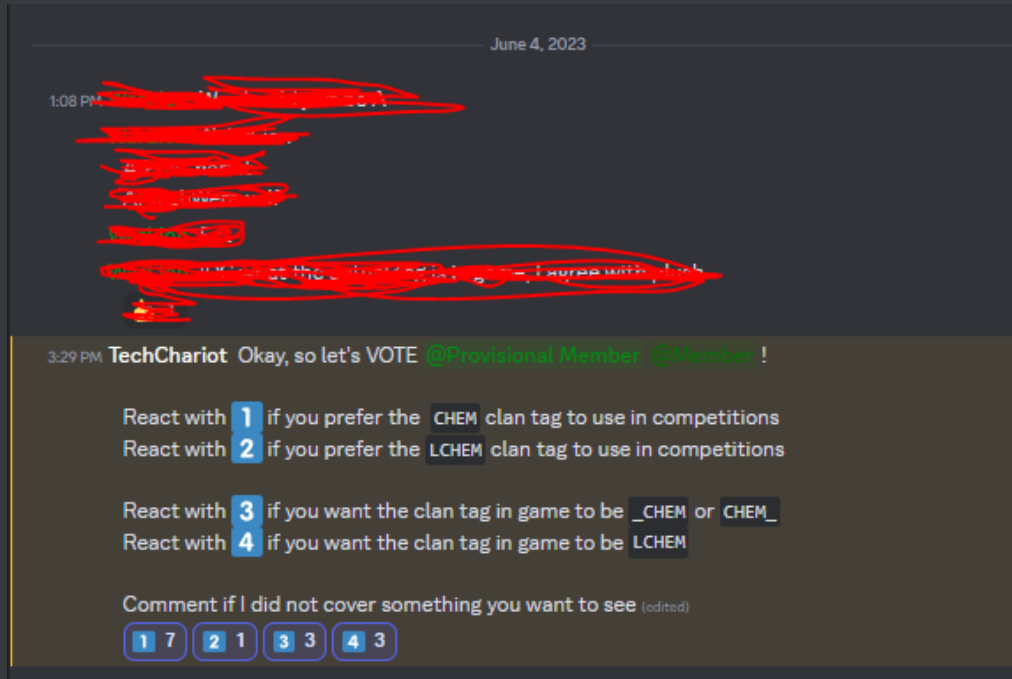

TO:

The “clan tag” [CHEM] shall be included in front of their names when playing in competition matches. Otherwise, the clan tag is not required. Note that the “in-game” clan-tag is “LCHEM”, due to the unavailability of “CHEM”.

Justification:

The selection of clan tag is a matter of personal preference, and no argument can be made proving that the new one is objectively superior. However, it can be proven that the new tag has broad consensus within Alchemy. A poll was released in the member-discussion channel on June 4th with the following reactions:

Thus, 7 of 13 members indicated a preference for CHEM over five days, but were evenly divided about how the clan tag should appear in game (with overall lower interest in the poll). Ultimately “LCHEM” was selected for the in-game clan tag, since subsequent attempts to use “_CHEM” or “CHEM_” were unsuccessful.

Note that as a Class II Change, technically this CCO only requires the approvals of the Officers, but since TechChariot is the only officer at this time (by defacto, since nobody qualifies), a general poll was released to achieve consensus.
